

EARTH-FRIENDLY INNOVATIONS

Recognising the growing importance of Eco-friendly fabrics and manufacturing processes, STENCIL® continues to innovate with the introduction of the Sorona® Polo.

For decades, when people thought of Eco-friendly fabrics, their minds went to scratchy, dull hemp and raw fibres — but today the reality couldn't be more different. Eco-friendly fabrics have come a long way, with modern offerings providing high-tech finishes and wear characteristics to rival any other contemporary fabric.

The Sorona® Polo

Sorona®, developed by DuPont™, is a shining example of these advancements. An ecologically responsible plant-origin fibre, Sorona® offers unmatched wear characteristics while requiring 30% less energy to produce than an equivalent quantity of Nylon. Produced in part from renewable corn harvest, Sorona® uses natural fermentation in place of chemical processing in its manufacture, reducing its environmental impact without sacrificing quality or performance.

Blended with STENCIL® Cool Dry to make the Sorona® Polo, the finished fabric is wonderfully soft and supple, and available in a range of attractive colours that won't fade with wash or wear, thanks to Sorona®'s inherently high UV resistance.

A subtle natural stretch and a cool, silken feel against the skin are the most noticeable signs of Sorona®'s insulative and quick drying attributes — qualities which make it ideal for the Australian climate — with the Sorona® Polo easily releasing excess heat from the wearer's skin. Its softness shouldn't be mistaken for fragility, either; Sorona®'s smooth finish and subtle stretch are the distinctive signature of a durable fabric that can go the extra mile, with natural antibacterial qualities as well as wrinkle and odour resistance, to keep you looking and feeling your best even after a long, hot day.

Forever innovating.

The Sorona® is just the latest addition to an already impressive range of STENCIL® garments. With an unwavering focus on quality and innovation, STENCIL® is constantly improving on existing successes, as well as looking for new possibilities. With an uncompromisingly high quality range filled with garments designed for maximum comfort, STENCIL® is sure to remain an Australian favourite.
